

FIGURE 13.27. Comparisons between the α - and β -globin genes show that the molecular clock ticks steadily; that is, divergence occurs at almost the same rate in different lineages.